

Routes bt

Individuals may respond to overwhelming conditions by increasing physical distance from the source of stimulation. Rapid movement functions as a short-term regulation of sensory and emotional load. Such responses stabilize the immediate situation but do not resolve its structural causes.

David Ristic